Caroline Loving & Aaron Wynia

Save the Date: 10.29.16

An innocent meet-cute in middle school turned into a happy ending 15 years later for Caroline and Aaron. Between graduating from the same middle school, high school and college and working together on the swim team and at Stone Mountain Park, the two were clearly destined to be together, and Caroline has a dazzling new ring to prove it. Having known each other for years, working as a team to plan a wedding is an easy task for this dynamic duo, who will be married at Heritage Sandy Springs. Wanting their engagement photo shoot to match the time of their big day, Julie Anne of Julie Anne Wedding Photographer (julieannephotography.com) snapped Caroline and Aaron in the fall at Stone Mountain Park where they often visited growing up. Move over Disney, there's a new fairy tale in the making!

Jami Lupuloff & Kevin Friedrich

Save the Date: 6.25.16

From the first time they cheered for the Bulldogs together in Sanford Stadium as freshmen at the University of Georgia, Jami and Kevin became each others' biggest fans. Returning to where they first met, The Decisive Moment (thedeisivemoment.com) photographed the newly engaged couple between the hedges in Athens, Ga. The college-sweethearts will bring Athens to Atlanta for an elegant Southern wedding at The Foundry at Puritan Mill, where the spirited couple will swap a "Go Dawgs" for an "I do."

Melissa Chalef & Scott Hyman

Save the Date: 10.22.16

Distance was no match for lovebirds Melissa and Scott, who spent two years separated by state lines before Melissa made the move from NYC to live seaside with her fiancé in Delray Beach, Fla. The couple first heard wedding bells as bridesmaid and groomsman of mutual friends, but it didn't take long for them to hear the bells of their own wedding! With playful engagement pictures featuring confetti captured by The Decisive Moment (thedeisivemoment.com), this Grand Hyatt Atlanta wedding is sure to be sweet.
